WEDNESDAY MORNING JULY 9, 1862

No flag but the Old Flag,—the Red White and Blue
With the stars and the Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it ye sons of the Free
Whose blood bought the Banner your valor must save

What was to be Expected

There are certain men in Vancouver who claim to be the leaders of the democratic party They are well known to have exhibited the treason in their hearts against the Government that has given, and continues to give them, protection, by rejoicing at the defeat of the Federal arms They would be glad at this time to cover their treason by denials of this truth, but fortunately for patriotic people, but unfortunately for themselves, their avowals of treason were not made under a bushel Dodge which way they will, squirm as they will, hide it as they will, treason sticks to them like the shirt of Nessus

They have even gone so far in their convention to furnish a cover to hide themselves, that they have adopted as their resolutions much of those which their friends refused to vote for in the Legislature, introduced there by Griswold. To save themselves—to cheat the people—they would seize upon any garments to hide themselves—even were it the cast off garments of abolition Unfortunately for them, they are in the condition of the hunted stag—their heads are thrust among the leaves, but their hinder parts are prominently exposed!

These men follow the pattern set for them by the secessionists of this State, before they received their doom at the late election The secession convention at Vancouver, which its proprietors christened 'Union Democratic Convention,' like the famous or infamous Corvallis Convention, sent out a platform made to read any way and every way to suit the secessionists, or, as they supposed, the Union men. Fatally for the Oregon secessionists, the people of the State understood the character of their platform as well as those who got it up; and it will be fortunate for the people of Clarke county if they shall exhibit at the coming election the same intelligence and the same patriotism to act upon that intelligence.

We well recollect that one week before the election in Oregon, the candidates of the secesh party declared that the rebels should be crushed down at every cost and at every hazard The people had no confidence in this new light, new dodge, or whatever else it might be designated. They placed their ban upon secession and secession candidates And now, as evidence of the hollow-hearted character of their secesh declarations just before the election, we find in the secession organs of our State the most solemn declarations that the South cannot be put down, and if that were possible the people North will not submit to taxation to effect this object

So it will be in Vancouver, if the devotees of Jeff. Davis and Beauregard there are beaten, or succeed in the coming election They are not honest now Their love of the Union is mere pretence, and we shall be sure to find them in two months from this time, under any circumstances, as ready to rejoice at rebel victories as they have been

MILITARY.—We learn from Lieut Halloran of this city, that Brigadier General Alvord arrived at Vancouver on Monday morning last and immediately took command of the post and was greeted with a Brigadier General's salute from the garrison Col Steinberger took his departure on steamer Oregon for San Francisco, on leave of absence

The volunteer company which Capt Spencer and Lieut Halloran have been engaged in enlisting, is nearly filled, and will be duly mustered into service now in a few days Only a few more chances left for those who wish to enlist, hence, they had better call early at the recruiting office on Front street near post-office

GEN. ALVORD.—In a private letter from a friend, are the following just remarks in relation to this gentleman

"I feel great pleasure on having my favorite of all the army corps, elected Commandant of this Military District—(which I thought for obvious reasons to be a Military Depôt and) His response to my appeal to him found the starving emigrants in 1852 won my heart and he has been justly rewarded for his faithfulness and kindness He is a brave christian gentleman and soldier and with such men to rule us, this nation will prosper, and our Union be preserved —for God Almighty will be on our side"

CONGRESSMEN.—A bill is now before Congress fixing a uniform day throughout the United States for the election of members of Congress.

LATER FROM THE EAST.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

Dates to July 2d.

BATTLE NEAR CHARLESTON.

Federal Forces Repulsed.

BATTLE BEFORE RICHMOND.

Federals Successful.

The Bloodiest Battle of the War.

Terrible Loss of Life.

YREKA, July 4, 12 M.—The following is just received

NEW YORK June 30.—The steamers Philadelphian from Newport and the Ericsson from Key West have arrived The latter brought 189 passengers including General Benham and staff and 57 soldiers wounded in the late engagement at James' Island near Charleston

The Federal troops under General Benham made an attack on the morning of the 16th and were repulsed after four hours fighting with the loss of 608 killed wounded and missing The Eighth Michigan had but 29 men left at roll call The New York 79th also suffered severely Our troops were obliged to retreat under cover of the gunboats

MEMPHIS, June 26.—The first train of Corinth, via Memphis & Charleston Railroad left yesterday, with a number of teams and wagons, one company of the 58th Ohio, with several officers was attacked by a large force of rebel cavalry 14 miles from here, they destroyed the locomotive and cars, killed three of our men and captured several officers including Kinney, Major Pride and Sharp and Capt McCall of Grant's staff

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Tribune's extra has a despatch dated on the battle field which says a severe and most determined battle occurred on the right wing Thursday and Friday which is claimed by some of our officers to be successful

A strategic movement into which the enemy has been unwillingly drawn, is in progress which will soon result in the capture of Richmond and the entire rebel army

An attack was made by the enemy in an immense force, above Mechanicsville, on Thursday, P M They fought desperately but were unable to drive our men a single rod, though the rebels were two to our one The only force engaged that day was McCall's division The battle lasted from 2 o'clock to 9 P M McClellan was on the field and expressed himself satisfied with the result

CITY POINT, Va 27th.—Refugees report that Jackson, Price and Beauregard at Richmond all about to be assigned to important commands. It was rumored in rebel camps yesterday, that Jackson had turned McClellan's right wing

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Tribune has the following Thursday noon the enemy made an attack on Gen Stoneman's forces in the vicinity of Hanover Court House probably for the purpose of accomplishing and outflanking the right wing and to engage our attention in that direction Shortly afterwards they commenced a vigorous cannonading from an eminence opposite Mechanicsville from two batteries, one above and one below They were replied to by Campbell's gun batteries on picket duty on Mechanicsville road Some distance to the right, about 2000 of the enemy's infantry and a squadron of cavalry crossed the Chickahominy An immense force is at a short distance above the Virginia Central road making a rapid advance towards McCall's division who were entrenched on hilly land across a swampy ravine half a mile in the rear of Mechanicsville The 1st Pennsylvania rifles with Campbell's battery on picket duty with the exception of one company were surrounded and taken prisoners—They fell back behind breastworks which the line of battle was drawn up The enemy advanced down in the rear of Mechanicsville in swampy ground where our forces were in line on the north side of the ravine The conflict became terrible The rebels, with the most determined courage, pressed forward over the marsh, but our bullets and grape shot fell among them like hail mowing them down by hundreds thus continued until dark, when they withdrew The cannonade was kept up until nine o'clock, when the battle closed—Our forces, covered by earthworks, suffered but little.

Late in the afternoon, the enemy made a charge with cavalry—about 100 attempted to cross the ravine, but their horses became mired, a squadron of our infantry, seeing their position, charged down hill upon the rebels abandoned their horses and fled; the cavalry was then removed, and according to statement of our informant, the fight continued until 7 o'clock, when a retreat was ordered and our forces began to fall back During the battle the correspondent says, the cannonading and musketry was terrible The enemy made another attempt to break through our right, which was repulsed—shortly after a last another attempt was made on the left with the same result The battle had then been raging several hours without any seeming change or advantage on either side; reinforcements of artillery came steadily along from the bridge to the field of battle—the enemy seemed to make a last desperate effort, and came near forcing our men back into the low ground between the hill and bridge, where we would have been slaughtered by thousands if before we had crossed the bridge Wagons, artillery ambulances and men, were hurrying toward the bridge, and a panic seemed almost to prevail when a strong guard was placed on the bridge At one time the enemy reached the main Hospital, half mile from the river Meagher's Irishmen came over, stripped to the waist, to the attack—they gave one yell and went to work, the result was the filling back of the enemy to the woods

Things matters stood up to 10 o'clock Sunday morning

Another correspondent speaking of Friday's Battle, says two along the front the rebels attacked our line over rifle pits and ditches Porter with 30 cannons and a number of Hooker and Ayres guns mowed them down in a terrible harvest of death Their loss in killed and wounded was horrible Under date of Friday the same correspondent says Ten guns were taken from us by certain flank movements covered by thick smoke which hung around the rebels A Major belonging to Jackson's army captured, says part of Jackson's forces arrived yesterday, and the balance this morning

Second Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO July 4.—The following dispatches from the War of this morning

At Hanover C H yesterday the Pennsylvania Bucktail drove the attacking regiment of Jackson's command Finally they were overpowered by superior force and retreated by the remaining part of Hanover army Argument of regulars called up proved inadequate to the task of stopping them and Slaughter's command had to be added The conduct of this regiment in sustaining this unequal action was good they ran away, but not until they had done much execution Our losses were considerable The 11th regulars is about annihilated and nearly every fire killed or wounded The 12th also suffered severely Several artillery was the disarray of our troops and its unwieldiness, they were thus compelled to leave Major Russell of the regulars, and Lieut Parker of New York were killed

McClellan has fallen back to the base of his operations from the James river

New York July 2.—Dispatches to Flag Officer Goldsborough Monday are said to say that the rebel attack on our right was a desperate affair in which the rebels lost 5,000 Our loss is heavy Gen Stoneham being cut off from the right wing had to retreat to Fort Monroe Gen Dix arrived at Fortress Monroe

It is stated from McClellan's headquarters that Lieut Commander Rhind of the White Oak Swamp with 12,000 men and 12,000 pounds of stuff is to cross and annihilate the pontoon and subsequently cut the right and left of communication to James river

It is expected that in two days fighting McClellan will ten thousand men

It is stated that upon communication of the governors of the loyal States the President will call for 200,000 volunteers to fill up the units which have been required till the close of the war

Washington July 2d.—The President has approved and signed the Pacific Railroad bill and Internal Tax bill

The Columbus (Miss.) Appeal of June 27th has dispatches from Vicksburg which say Porter's fleet passed on the lower Mississippi P M yesterday, and stopped at 7 but remained but a few hours To day twelve transports and gunboats and Farragut and Davis at Brown and Johnson's place, on the Louisiana shore

The Charleston Mercury says In view of the storm soon to break over the head of our devoted city we have removed our office to Columbia

LATEST FROM INDIAN MASSACRE.—Alexander Ivey Indian Agent in the Colorado country recently arrived at San Francisco on the Senator and reports that just before the stage were leaving Los Angeles a man arrived at that place from Kern river who stated that Peter Abel well known about Fort Tejon, with thirteen or fourteen others, were cruelly massacred by the Indians at Owens river, only one man escaping to tell the tale The party had four wagons loaded with provisions and forty five horses They formed a corral with their wagons, in which they were besieged for days, but finally having resolved to effect their escape at all hazards were brutally murdered with a single exception, all their property falling into the hands of the savages Mr Cooley saw the command of Col Evans on the march for Owens river, and thinks it too small to be effective, and that it had but sixty days rations

CONDITION OF VIRGINIA.—A gentleman who left the valley of the Shenandoah a few weeks since, arrived at San Francisco recently, and reports a horrid condition of affairs in that part of the country. He says starvation must eventually overtake the inhabitants of Eastern Virginia if the contest is not soon ended in that State so that supplies can be furnished the inhabitants from the North—families who were opulent a year ago are now almost without the means of subsistence; no crops are put in the ground and fences are destroyed, and the negroes are wandering about in a most pitiable condition, without anything to eat or the ability or desire to procure any except such as comes in their way He thinks fifty years of peace will hardly suffice to repair the damages occasioned by one year of secession desolation

Coughs—Hoarseness, Croup, Colds, Clergymen's Sore Throat, Influenza, Bronchitis and Asthmatic Affections Especially this is the case with that simple remedy Brown's Bronchial Troches, or Lozenges for the cure of which a liberal supply has been sent to this city Public Speakers and Singers will find the Troches give instant relief during the voice is used in singing

The attention of the community is respectfully solicited to the NEW and full assortment of Boots and Shoes now opening at the store of the subscriber, on Front street, between Washington and Stark streets, where he will be pleased to see his friends and customers, and all others who may favor him with a call

...ORNING OREGONIAN has a larger ...SCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

...AILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin ...k Store, and at Charles Barrett's, Front street

...TAGE STAMPS.—Our citizens have been ...derably annoyed for the last five or six ... by the failure to procure postage stamps ...elopes for use in mailing and insuring ...eedy transmiss... of their letters to distant friends and on business matters. The ... regulations require that all letters must ...epaid before mailing and forwarding. Postmasters are prohibited from taking ...ey postage"—nothing but stamps or en... allowed to be used in payment of postage.

It not unfrequently happens that Post...ers or Post-offices exhaust the supply, un... very large, in a few days' time, especially ... an unexpected demand for them rushes ...on the office. The Department at Wash... have universally dealt out supplies for ...ifferent offices on this coast with a very ...ing hand, why so, we cannot tell but ...hin it is that there is scarcely an office in ... State of Oregon or Washington Territory ... what is frequently destitute of stamps ... envelopes for weeks and sometimes ...ths, notwithstanding the stringent regula... relative to prepayment We have no ...ction to the system of prepayment, or pro...tion of "money postage," but it is reasonable to suppose, and necessity requires, that ... Department at Washington should punc...ly see that all the offices are well supplied ...th the means required by the Government ... the accommodation of its citizens when ... they desire to avail themselves of those ...ns. Mr. Davis informs us that he sent a ...uisition to the Department at Washington ... 6th of April last, since which time he has ...eived no reply. He has some two or three ...es sent to San Francisco and procured a ...ll supply of stamps and envelopes, receiv... each time what he confidently believed ...uld be enough to last until his requisition ...uld reach him from Washington; but from ...me unknown cause, no stamps, envelopes, ... anything else has been received by him for ...re than three months past. This delay and ...lure to procure legal postage payments is ...ry annoying, if not seriously damaging ...many who have important interests at stake ...which can only be heard from or conducted ...through the United States mails. Hundreds ... letters are constantly accumulating in the ...t-office, which, if forwarded, will have to ... done in violation of the regulations, as they ...not be prepaid. We hope that the officers ... the Post-office Department at Washington ...ll pay more attention to this matter, and if ...sible, keep the most important Post-offices ... this coast better supplied than heretofore.

FINES AND PUNISHMENT.—We understand ...t our City Recorder has become somewhat ...dignant in consequence of our notice rela... to the slight fine and punishment pro...nced upon the "Sport" who ran the foot ...ce upon the public square, last Sunday.—We did not intend to reflect materially upon ...e efficiency and general promptness in busi... of Recorder McCoy. We have always ...garded him as an excellent officer, faithful ... honest, in his capacity as Recorder, and ...ll but the one exception, equally so in his ...pacity as Justice of the Peace This ex...tion grows out of an erroneous opinion, ...ich he has honestly held, that it is better ... to impose heavy penalties when parties ... not able to pay them, and hence would ...ve to be committed to the city jail for a ...ng time at the expence of the city He ...inks that it is better for the city to ...mmit for four days than ten. According ... this logic, it is better to commit for two ...stead of four, or one instead of two, and to ...llow the conclusion, it would be best not to ...mmit at all, thereby saving all the expense ... committal, which is greatest at first, in ...e of Marshal, &c, for opening jail and ...n locking it again. We take it that the ...ject of fines and penalties are to act as ...reventives"—the greater the punishment ...e greater the fear to commit similar deeds ... Punishments are mainly intended to deter a ...petition of similar crimes or misdemeanors ...ence, when only slight punishments are in...icted the principal object of the law is lost ... Fines are imposed as punishments, and for ... purpose of paying expenses of Courts and ...fficers whose duty requires them to preserve ...der in the community. Cases frequently ...ccur in which the peace and dignity of the ...ommunity has been grossly violated, and the ...ost attendant upon arrest and bringing to ...ial of offending party amounts to consider...ble, and should be punished accordingly ... The imposition of $5, or at most $10, as has ...sually been the case with our Recorder does ...t half repay the expense and trouble to city ...r city police. Again, it not unfrequently ...ccurs that an indignant individual desires to ...dminister corporeal punishment upon some ...ther individual who has given cause of insult, ...nd forthwith proceeds to gratify his desire, ...nd is evident that at most it will not cost him ...bove $10 or $15, and he feels as though he ...ould freely give that amount for the satisfac...ion afforded. But we have not room at this ...me to give our views in full upon this sub...ct, only touching some of the many reasons why the City Recorder, acting as Justice of the Peace, and all other peace officers who have similar authority, should exercise a sound discretion and as far as possible, inflict such fines and penalties as shall meet the objects of the law in every particular

The steamer Active has now [illegible] prominently on her pilot h... use—"U S M"—meaning of course, that she carries the Samoa's Mails. Yesterday she received a hint that she cannot mail speed over the ground when it is only a little damp She endeavored to cross the wharf at Vancouver, and placed herself on one of the piles—on which she spun about very handsomely She was finally, after some tugging, pulled off and went on her way rejoicing.

ESPECIAL —We are especially requested by City Marshal Grooms to state that he, the City Marshal himself, arrested that hombre who ran the foot race on the public square last Sunday, and not the Deputy Marshal, as stated by us yesterday's issue Of this everybody will take particular notice, and remember accordingly

DELICIOUS —The young men of this office feel themselves very much indebted to a young lady for a basket of nice cherries How delicious they were, and how soon they melted!

The Pacific may be expected here this evening, direct from San Francisco She was to leave that city on the 5th inst

"MISREPRESENTED" —Will 'Nibb's' friend of the Advertiser please explain?

HIGH TAXES —The levee tax of Sacramento amounts to four per cent. on all the real and personal property of that city This is paying high for the privilege of living in a place where the mercury runs up to 105° in the summer, and the mud is neck deep in the winter

ANOTHER WAR —It is believed that England and Persia are about to engage in a war with each other About fifty thousand Persian troops with 100 cannon were started on their way in March to attack Herat, which is in violation of a treaty with England, and can hardly fail to provoke a war with that power. Russian policy is thought to be the secret of the Persian movement

The Model Young Woman.

1. A model young woman takes care of her health by a proper observance of its laws in all ways, but especially so in regard to diet, dress, and exercise. Her diet is simple. Her dress is so constructed as to be comfortable and warm without impeding locomotion, of the lower extremities especially. She exercises frequently in the open air, thus bringing the flush of health to her cheek, and sending healthy life-blood unhindered by tight lacing to every part of her system.

2. She is modest. Modesty is synonymous with chastity or purity of manners. An affectation of modesty is sometimes seen among women, but wherever this is witnessed it is a sure evidence that the genuine article is missing; for that is always unaffected and natural. "Unaffected modesty is the sweetest charm of female excellence; the richest gem in the diadem of female honor." Modesty is natural to woman; it may be preserved by cultivating only the sweetest and purest thoughts.

3. She has good taste. "Taste is a nice perception, or the power of perceiving and relishing excellence in human performances: it is the faculty of discerning beauty, order, congruity, proportion, symmetry, or whatever else constitutes excellence." It is not altogether natural nor is it wholly acquired, but it may be highly cultivated.

Good taste manifests itself in dress, conversation, and general appearance; and will regulate all her intercourse with others, especially those of the opposite sex. It will abash the vulgar and encourage and strengthen the good. Modesty and good taste build around the possessor a strong tower of defence.

4. She is intelligent. She acquires intelligence in all suitable ways, especially by observation, reading, and conversation. She looks upon the world as a great volume of facts around her, wrought out by the Almighty Artificer, and proper for her to study; and in the tiny leaflet or the granite boulder, she sees the work of God, and endeavors to understand it. She reads good books carefully, and tries to make the facts and ideas therein her own. Her conversation is with the wise and good, and in it she is constantly receiving or giving truth. She knows but little of what is called "small talk," and she never practices it—such food is not agreeable to her intellectual appetite.

5. She is emotional. As a well-tuned harp, she will answer immediately and accurately to the finest and most delicate touch of the player, so her heart feels deeply and acutely. The recital of the sorrows of others finds an answering chord in her heart which echoes responsively the bitter wail. And the sight and the sound of joy in others makes her heart leap up as leaps the bird, which rising from its lowly nest toward Heaven, sings with quivering melody its song of praise and gladness.

6. She is self-sacrificing. She is always ready to make sacrifices of her time, or labor, or anything which she can for those in whom she feels an interest. And this is no mark of weakness in her, but it is noble. Jesus manifested the same spirit, and it is one of the noblest traits exhibited in his character.

7. She is affectionate. She loves every lovable thing. Love is the mainspring of all her actions. She labors for those whom she loves because she loves them. And such is the intensity of her love that no sacrifice can be demanded of her so great that she will not make it for them.

8. She is pious. Her soul is the abode of her Saviour. In the light of religion she walks as if treading upon a rock. Here she acquires her decision and strength to deny herself, and to refuse to do wrong with as much firmness as she would do right with cheerfulness. This is the keystone to the arch of her character, supporting and beautifying the whole, with the crown of light and purity surmounting all the rest; and sitting there as the cloven tongues sat, on the

The hindrances to the formation of such a character are bad company, bad habits, and bad books. Eschew these and take firm hold of the opposites, and any young woman of ordinary cultivation, can form and maintain a character like that described above. Young women, you can give this subject your careful and thoughtful consideration.

An 1812 War Story.

The following, we believe, has never seen print. Ogden Hoffman used to tell the story. He was in the great fight between the Constitution and the Guerrie, and said that as the British ship came sailing down on them, as they heard the sharp orders, when the guns were run out and the men could be seen ready with their matchlocks, an officer came in haste to Captain Isaac Hull, and asked for orders to fire. "Not yet," was the quiet response. As they came still nearer, and the British vessel poured in her fire, the first lieutenant of the Constitution came on the poop and begged permission to return the broadside, saying that the men could not be restrained much longer. "Not yet," was the indifferent reply. Still nearer the British ship came, and the American prisoners who were in the cock-pit of the Guerrie, afterwards said that they began to believe their own countrymen were afraid to measure their strength with that of the enemy, and this thought gave them more pain than the wounds from which some of them were still suffering. In a moment after the Guerrie rode gallantly forward, showing her burnished sides; and as the swell carried her close to the very muzzles of Old Ironsides, Captain Hull, who was then quite fat and dressed in full tights, bent himself twice to the deck, and with every vein and muscle throbbing with excitement, shouted out as he made another gyration, "Now boys, pour it to them." That broadside settled their opponent, and when the smoke cleared away the Commodore's tights were seen to be split from waist band to heel. Truly the Commodore had a soul "too big for his breeches."—Hoffman used to add that Hull, nothing disconcerted, gave his orders with perfect coolness, and only changed his tights when the British Commander's sword was given up to him.

The Fatal Trick---A Tiger Loose.

(Concluded.)

It was about noon when I awoke. I hurried on my clothes, passed a wet towel around my head, swallowed some soda water, and afterwards a cup of coffee, and then hastened to the college. It was the hour of the professor of chemistry, and I entered the room just as they had commenced to descant upon the subject. The class were all rapt in attention—for the lecturer was an able man, and was treating upon "Light," a matter of interest, and capable of being beautiful illustration. He had scarcely finished his short and eloquent exordium, before we heard the crash of bottles, and a low, startling growling in the next room. The professor started, and stopped a moment, while those of the class not in the secret looked at each other in astonishment. There was a pause of a few seconds' duration, and then the professor proceeded.

I began to feel alarmed, as I remembered what had been done the night before. Under ordinary circumstances there was no danger to be apprehended. The bear was tame enough, and had been whipped until he had imbibed a proper sense of the superiority of man. But from the sounds, I judged that Brain had worked himself into a room only separated from us by a thin partition and lit windows, in which were kept the various drugs used in illustrating experiments. There were a great many carboys and bottles of acid in the room. Should he overset any of these, and their contents touch his skin, he would be apt to break through the windows of the apartment, and do some mischief before we could secure him. By the looks of my companions I saw they entertained the same fears.

There was another crash and growl. The professor stopped again, and the class looked around in dismay. Those who were unacquainted with the cause of the noise, could scarcely keep their countenance. In spite of the alarm under which they labored, there was something so ludicrous in the growl, especially when we figured to ourselves the coming consternation of the class, that they could hardly refrain from laughing outright. The professor who could not tell from whence the sound proceeded and thought it a trick of the class, reproved them severely, and then continued his lecture. "Gentlemen," said he, "prepare for a brilliant experiment; I will show you a most startling effect."

And he did: Hark! there was a sudden crash as if ever bottle in the place had been destroyed at once—a smoke rose up—there was a terrible howl that made the blood curdle and the marrow thrill—and through the frail glass—Father of Truth! we had mistaken the cage—there leaped forth, infuriated with burning liquid which streamed over him—horror—an untamed royal tiger!

No words can describe the consternation of the class. Petrified with horror—motionless—there we sat. Not a muscle quivered, so rigid were we with intense fear. It was our preservation. Maddened with pain, the animal rushed on with terrific bounds, and meeting with no obstacle, passed down the stairs into the great hall. There as he leaped and rolled and howled in his agony, the eldest daughter of our janitor, coming with a message, unwittingly entered. She screamed and fell. The tiger, frantic with the acid, which was eating to his very flesh, heeded her not. On he passed, and the girl lived. Better had she died, for never again shown the light of reason in those vacant eyes. From that day forth, she was a gibbering, incurable idiot.

On passed the tiger, out through the streets, with the populace flying to every side for shelter—past his old prison, where the keepers stood wondering at his escape. On he went, while behind him before and around rose the mingled cry of men, women and children—"The tiger! the tiger!"

At the extremity of the main street a traveler was riding quietly to his house. He heard the noise behind him, and casting his eyes saw the cause. He spurred his horse, who started snorting with terror, for he saw the combig of the mighty animal as well as his master. It was in vain. The tiger noted not the man. He only saw the terrified steed.—One leap—the distance was just saved—and he put his claws into the hind quarters of the horse, who unmindful of his double burden, rushed on bearing his fearful load as though it were but a feather's weight. The man received no hurt. With presence of mind and coolness most determined—for it resulted from despair—he drew his bowie-knife from his bosom, and with one stroke buried it to the hilt in the tiger's neck. The spinal marrow of the royal brute was severed and he died in an instant. But he did not release his hold. Still with the death gripe he clung to his place, his eyes glassy and glaring, and his claws sunk deep into the flesh. On went the horse, snorting, plunging and rearing in mingled pain and terror—on he went until, exhausted by fatigue and loss of blood, he fell prostrate. Those who came that way an hour after, cautiously and timidly, saw the three stretched together. They stole up—lo! the horse and tiger were dead, and over their lifeless forms was the traveler, insensible, though alive, and still grasping in his hand the friendly knife.

Resolution of the City Council.

RESOLVED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE City of Portland, That it is deemed expedient by the Common Council to improve Front from "C" street, Couch's Addition, to Alder street, by raising the grade thereof not less than one foot above the line of grades, and by paving the roadway with cobble stones and the setting proper cut stone curb, and by laying of plank side walks ten feet in width, including the stone curb.

Passed by the Common Council and ordered to be published.

H. BOYD, Clerk.

SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

—AND—

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and easily kept in order; should make a seam to look alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread, or silk, directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with regularity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less, on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity; and should have a short needle; curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer, shirr, shell, tuck, full, run and gather; and should be always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colored threads or silk, above or below, or to respond with any two sizes of cotton to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to tension off the seam, and to commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel-feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order; neither should it require a screw-driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not be on a rocker on the under side, in travel.
